

Conclusions

- All four tasks have been started, some in more depth than others
- A test collection has been created and published, and thus T1 has been completed
 - Another test collection has also been created so it can be compared in experiments
- I have published three papers so far regarding each topic
 - Three more have been submitted and are awaiting notification, plus a doctoral consortium paper to SIGIR2018

Impact

- This research impacts clinicians and biomedical researchers
 - Systematic reviews will be faster to create
 - More accurate clinical decisions
 - Easier to update reviews
- The role of IR in systematic reviews has only just been touched upon
 - My research will build upon what has been done already and improve how people search in the systematic review process